INTRODUCTION OF VISITORS

Pursuant to Standing Order 36, the Speaker introduced visitors.

10 H 45

PRÉSENTATION DES VISITEURS

Conformément à l'article 36, le Président présente les visiteurs.

The Speaker addressed the House as follows:-

Given the number of interjections yesterday, I sense that some clarification around the sub judice rule might be helpful.

Sub judice in brief, is a voluntary restriction on the part of a legislative body to refrain from discussing matters that are before a judicial or quasi-judicial body. In other words, it is a self-imposed restriction that the Legislative Assembly places upon itself so as to avoid prejudice to a judicial case. At its core is the principle that the separation between legislative and judicial bodies is to be respected.

The sub judice convention is intended to apply to statements, debate and Question Period.

As, quite apparently, Members are well aware, in Ontario we have codified the sub judice convention in Standing Order 23(g).

However, until 1970, Ontario did not have a sub judice rule; instead practices and customs at Ottawa and Westminster served as the basis for a Speaker's decision.

In 1966, Speaker Morrow delivered two rulings which a) set out more precisely the interpretation to be given to the sub judice rule, and b) gave some leeway for debate on civil matters not yet set down for trial thus loosening a stricter prohibition on debate by way of a 1964 ruling by the same Speaker.

Then, in 1977, Speaker Rowe cited and endorsed several principles enunciated by a committee of the Canadian House of Commons which implied an even less restrictive interpretation of the rule.

These rulings formed the basis for a new sub judice rule which was adopted in 1978 and remains today.

Notwithstanding that Ontario has a Standing Order on sub judice, historically the voluntary nature of the convention makes it difficult to outline the jurisdiction of the Speaker.

PRIÈRES
9 H

With respect to Question Period particularly, Speakers here and in most other jurisdictions have adopted the practice of minimal responsibility with respect to the sub judice convention, principally leaving it up to the Member who asks the question and the Minister to whom it is addressed. (This is largely borne out in the Ontario precedents, with Speakers rarely interfering; the last time on record that a Speaker ruled a question out of order based on sub judice was Speaker Turner in 1982.)

The reason for this approach is that it is impossible for the Speaker to know which cases are at which stage in every instance and that the Minister involved is in a better position to judge whether engaging in the discussion has a danger of causing prejudice.

The Minister has the option of refusing to answer the question on grounds of sub judice as has been done most often in these situations.

Additionally, the problem facing a Speaker is that for him/her the determination when a comment will have the tendency to be prejudicial is speculative – that is, it cannot be done until after the remarks have been made.

Thus the Speaker will exercise his discretion with respect to the convention only in exceptional circumstances, when it is absolutely clear that doing otherwise would unfairly influence a judicial proceeding.

In 1976, there was a House of Commons special committee set up to review the "rights and immunities of Members..."; the committee considered the sub judice convention and recommended that "when there is doubt in the mind of the Chair, a presumption should exist in favour of allowing debate and against the application of the convention."

It is this longstanding practice that I have and will continue to apply in this House, interfering when and only when I am entirely satisfied, as Standing Order 23(g) says, "that further reference would create a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the proceeding".

Having said that, I would caution all Members to be mindful of the rule, its history and its purpose and to take excessive care that they avoid making comment on judicial cases that might have the effect of being prejudicial to a proceeding before a court of record.
