QUESTIONS ORALES

The Speaker delivered the following ruling:-

Le Président a rendu la décision suivante :-

Yesterday, the Member for Newmarket–Aurora, Mr. Klees, rose on a point of order respecting answers to written questions that he had asked of the Minister of Transportation, the Minister of Children and Youth Services and the Minister of Energy. The Government House Leader, Ms. Smith and the Third Party House Leader, Mr. Kormos, made submissions on this point of order.

The Member for Newmarket–Aurora complained that the answers to his written questions were not acceptable on the grounds that they were neither complete nor in some instances relevant to the question asked. While the Member raised this issue as a point of order, he subsequently sought redress by way of a finding of a prima facie case of privilege.

Let me clarify at the outset that while it may be arguable that this is more appropriately dealt with as a point of privilege, it was not raised as such with the requisite notice given. In any case, it has been determined previously that such an issue does not constitute a prima facie case of privilege. However, from the perspective of the matter potentially being a violation of the rules, it is sufficient to raise it as a point of order and I will address it as such.

Standing Order 99 sets out the provisions for written questions. With respect to the content or quality of answers to written questions, Standing Order 99 is silent. It provides only that written questions be answered within 24 sessional days unless volume or complexity necessitate additional time.

As is the case with oral questions, there are no provisions in the rules or customs of this place for the Speaker to scrutinize or evaluate government responses to written questions.

On May 18, 2010 I ruled on this same issue and I stated at that time that "numerous Speakers have ruled that during oral question period ministers may answer a question any way they see fit. It's also the case that it is not the Speaker's responsibility to ensure that the answer to a written question satisfies that question".

This is further supported, as the Government House Leader noted, in O'Brien and Bosc at page 522 where it says, "There are no provisions in the rules for the Speaker to review government responses to questions."

The House Leader for the Third Party referenced Standing Order 1(b) and seemed to suggest that somehow that Standing Order might allow for an expanded interpretation of Standing Order 99. I can't agree. In my mind, Standing Order 1 is in the nature of a purpose clause and provides a general statement of principle about the Standing Orders themselves. I do not think it is intended to give license to the Speaker to impose provisions or assert authority where none exist.

The Member for Newmarket–Aurora indicated that he believed he had a "legitimate and genuine grievance" in this matter and that may be so, but as a matter of procedure, the rules have been complied with and I can find nothing out of order.

I thank the Member for bringing this to the attention of the House and to the Government and Third Party House Leaders for their contributions to this discussion.

The House recessed at 11:37 a.m.

À 11 h 37, l'Assemblée a suspendu la séance.
